WIDESPREAD INTEREST IN ARMS FIGHT AT CANTON

All Quarters Attach Great Importance To Issue

LABOR BACKS SUN

Desire Guns For Own Volunteer Corps

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Aug. 15.—The controversy between the Canton Government and the Merchants' Volunteer Corps over the arms question has attracted the attention of all quarters and the public is attaching much importance to the point at issue.

It is noteworthy that labor organisations here have decided to support the Government and issued circular telegrams to that effect. It is reported, in this connection, that in going over to the side of the Government, the labor organisations are ambitious of receiving a portion of the arms and ammunition which they intend to use when their scheme for the organisation of laborers' volunteer corps has been put in force.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 14.—Official telegrams from Canton report that on August 13 the steamer Hsv, under threat of being fired upon by a Chinese gunboat, was forced to proceed to Whampoa, this action, having apparently been taken by the local authorities in order to prevent the Merchants Volunteer Corps from obtaining munitions of war which, it is believed, the vessel was bringing to Canton. Merchant Volunteers are reported to have been called in from Fatshan and other outlying parts to insist in enforcing the demand of the Corps to be supplied with munitions and to resist the order of disarmament issued by the Canton Government. The telegrams state that a general strike is to be called for August 14, the strike to remain in progress until the munitions are released and handed over.

The trade unions in Canton are demanding equal rights with the merchants to form volunteer corps and, though the Civil Governor is said to be disposed to grant their request, this is opposed by the Merchant Volunteers.

The Congresswas concluded after passing a resolution in favor of the establishment of a federation of Indian States.

A private meeting of party leaders was convoked to discuss a communication from Mr. Gandhi to Mr. Motilal Nehru proposing a settlement of the differences between the two wings of the Indian National Congress.

POLICE CHIEF CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Former Official In Foochow Alleged To Have Held Up Salaries

(China Press Correspondence)

Foochow, Aug. 13.—A matter which has excited no little attention during the last few days is the detention, by the authorities, of the former Police Commissioner Chang Tsao Chen, who was ordered to hand over his seal to the new Commissioner Kao Wen-kwei, on the 1st inst. This detention was the result of accusations brought against him, of absorption of public funds. According to the accusation, sent to Governor Sah, by representative of the whole body of police, numbering about 3,000 for the city and Nantai, Chang owed them June and July wages. Each policeman was to receive $8 taifu per month in addition to food reckoned at $4.20 taifu. They first appealed to the new commissioner who informed them that he would be responsible for their wages from August 1st on. Chang notified Kao that he would attend to the June and July payments, and a few nights ago the captains of the various precincts assembled at the yamen to receive their pay. Chang paid one half of June, or $4 taifu apiece, which was not enough by 200 cash to meet the expense for food, to say nothing of having anything over. This was more than the police could stand and they forthwith accused Chang of taking not only the amount received from the Finance Office for the expenses of the police department but also that collected monthly from each householder and each shopkeeper of the city and suburbs, the whole amounting to an enormous sum.

The Electric Light Company has also brought suit against Chang for over $50,000 which, it is claimed is owing to them by the Police Department. It is said that not a single payment has ever been made to the company since Chang assumed the position of police commissioner and yet a monthly tax for this purpose has been levied and collected from each householder and shopkeeper by the police department. Furthermore Chang has used the electricity in a most extravagant way, amounting in some months to 10,000 units and causing

Woman Fights Klan; Runs For Governor

(Reuter's American Service)

Dallas, Aug. 17.—With Kuklux'sm as the main issue, Mrs. Muriel Ferguson has become candidate for the nomination for the Governorship of Texas. Many are rallying to her support, because her principal opponent, Judge Robertson of the Dallas District Court, has not repudiated allegations of his sympathy with the Ku Klux Klan.

Mrs. Ferguson is believed to have a fighting chance, and, if successful, will be the first woman Governor of a State in America.

More Than 150 Villages In Shantung Are Flooded; 60,000 People Affected

Break In Grand Canal Dyke Leads To Serious Disaster; Hongkong Chinese Contribute Liberally To Flood Relief Funds For Canton

In view of the disastrous floods in Chihli, Hunan, Kuangtung, Kiangsu and other provinces, the Shanghai Chinese Foreign Famine Relief Committee has opened a fund here and now appeals to the Foreign and Chinese public for assistance in alleviating the unspeakable suffering of the millions of homeless and destitute people in the affected region.

Contributions will be received at the office of the committee, 3 Hankow Road (above the Customs Bank).

Peking, August 16.—The latest information received from Shantung shows that the break in the Grand Canal dyke has flooded over one hundred and fifty villages already in the Enhsien area, affecting at least 60,000 people whose crops are totally destroyed.

Two reassuring reports have been received from different parts of the country by the China International Famine Relief Commission.

The first information is from Foochow and points out that although the damage in the districts of Yuchi was estimated as amounting to over twelve million dollars this figure has not yet been verified and may prove to have been exaggerated. Other districts, however, have not yet reported so that the situation still remains uncertain until eye—witness accounts become available.

A telegram has also been received from the commission's representative in Hankow in which he states that the Yangtze river is steadily falling and has already receded three feet below its highest point this year. It will be remembered that at one time it had flooded the river front of most of the concessions and considerable anxiety was being felt as to its further progress.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, August 8.—The Flood Relief Committee in Canton has lately received many contributions of funds and food from the Hongkong Chinese. The Tung Wah Hospital and the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, in addition to the $20,000 in cash remitted a fortnight ago, have sent up some 3,000 sacks of rice. There are other supplies coming to Canton, and among the rice consignments shipped from Hongkong to Canton for the flood sufferers are several hundred sacks from the Confucian Society and the Chinese employees of the Hongkong Post office. Since the beginning of the 5th relief expedition of the Kwangtung Merchants Volunteer Corps, it has been joined by the Tung Wah Hospital (Hongkong) and the Hongkong Chinese General Chamber of Commerce.

It has been announced that the first four trips of the new steamship Tung On, plying between Canton and Hongkong, will be operated for the benefit of the relief fund. All freight and passenger receipts will go to the relief committee.

Those letters will be written by Secretary of War Weeks, who today expressed regret that Congress had not authorised him to promote the world flyers or give them some decoration for their accomplishment.

Secretary Weeks asked Congress at the last session to allow him discretion to promote certain junior officers in recognition of unusual servce. He had in mind such men as Lieutenant Russell L. JUDGE PURDY JAILS THREE FOR VAGRANCY

Three American seamen, arrested on charges of vagrancy, were sentenced to terms in Bilibid prison by Judge Milton D. Purdy in the United States Court for China yesterday morning.

United States Marshal Thurston Porter appeared as a witness in the case of George Newton, 28. Newton, Marshal Porter told the court, had appeared at the United States Consulate and requested to be admitted to the United States jail as he had no money, no home and was hungry. The destitute man had arrived in Shanghai on the President Maison about July 1. He overslept and missed his boat. At the time he had had about $104. When offered a passage home on another ship by the consulate, he had refused to go because he had had a sore leg which prevented him from working. The Court sentenced him to four months' at Bilibid.

George E. Hess, also a seaman, was given a sentence of three months and ten days on a similar charge, and Emil Peterson was sentenced to six months.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE AGAINST DUNNE DROPPED

Autopsy Shows Deceased Died Of Kidney Trouble; Morphia Present

Sub-Inspector Thomas Dunne, of Louza Police Station, who was charged at the British Police Court with manslaughter last Friday following the death of a station coolie whom the inspector had cuffed the previous day, was yesterday discharged, as a result of medical evidence to the effect that the deceased met his death through kidney trouble.

Last Wednesday Inspector Dunne cuffed one Yih Ah-tsung, a coolie at Louza Station. The man was taken to hospital a few hours later, and died the following day. Dr. Dawenport, the physician who attended him, giving it as his opinion that the man died from an injury to the base of the brain, probably caused by a severe blow on the occiput. The Inspector was arrested, and charged Friday morning at the British Police Court before Magistrate G. W. King, being held in $500 bail, the case being remanded for one week until the result of an autopsy and inquest had clarified matters.

At the inquest held last Friday afternoon an autopsy was decided on. Also, the Court had no objections to Inspector Dunne appointing one of the physicians to make the autopsy. The two physicians who gave their reports in Court yesterday were Dr. McKinstry, of the Health Depart-

Flivver Tourists Here On Race Around World

Captain And Miss Wanderwell Arrive In Shanghai In Fords

"And the little old Ford rambled right along....."

And yesterday, two of them, upholding the best traditions of the much-maligned Detroit product, and in tune with the popular song, rambled right into Shanghai after having nonchalantly but thoroughly covered most of the miles on the Northern hemisphere.

Whether the name makes the cars go or whether the going was inspired by the euphonious, travel-provoking family designation of "Wanderwell" is a question but the Wanderwells, Aloha and her brother, Captain W. W., as he is known, certainly have wandered well—and far—in their Fords, as records shown and conversation had with them yesterday afternoon, soon after their arrival here from Hongkong on the Hugo Stinnes line steamship "Albert Vogler," attest.

These adventurers who are writing a new odyssey of the road are two of a company of seven, in as many cars, who started in 1921 on an endurance contest that grew out of one lady's determination not to ride in a Ford! The lady, Nell Wanderwell, wife of Captain Wanderwell, who is now in Shanghai, when last heard from, was in St. Louis. In 1919, Nell Wanderwell, Captain Wanderwell, Al Reid, a mechanician, and Mrs. Reed, and Miss Molly Bryan, left Atlanta, Ga. the old home town in a big car, "Unit 1," as it was called, with the avowed intention of circuling the globe and making all stops.

WHICH IS BEST

Across thirty-six states of America, then through Mexico, Costa Rica, Nicaraugua, Guatemala, and Honduras they went. This much covered, it was deemed inadvisable at the time to proceed to South America and a return to lower California was made. Besides, there was too much argument about the merits of big cars versus small cars or, plainly speaking, Fords. Before a new start was made the first unit broke up into several parts, those who preferred Fords driving them and those who had other tastes, pampering themselves.

Captain Wanderwell then conceived the idea of making a test of the durability and endurance of a small machine against one of the high-powered competitors. A trial trip from Vancouver, British Columbia, to Miami, Florida, part of the way along the famous Dixie Highway, was arranged. Mrs. Wanderwell in the big machine arrived in 17 days and 14 hours, only 36 hours ahead of the smaller car which has just arrived in Shanghai. This satisfied Captain Wanderwell that the two cars were practically evenly matched and he then proposed that the competition be extended around the world.

UNIQUE CONDITIONS

The conditions of the contest are interesting. First, all cars competing must earn their way; they must always fly three flags, the olive flag of the League of Nations, the courtesy flag, or the national emblem of the country in which they are travelling, and the flag of the country of origin, (United States). All cars, regardless of engines, must be built along the same lines—without dogs, low, and stripped of all non-essentials, so as to achieve the most power and speed for the smallest expenditure of fuel and effort; finally all cars must assemble at the next world's exhibition and product official records showing countries and mileage covered. There are a few other conditions one of which has proved a constant stumbling-block. This is that the contestants must remain unmarried until the race is over, and secretary after secretary, added to the party, each more hopefully than the last, has succumbed to the lure of matrimony somewhere on the trip and has dropped out. This phenomenon is not hard to understand when one remembers that a condition for obtaining the position of secretary is that the applicant be pretty enough to film well, for contestants appear in the movies that each party takes as part of the official records.

AND ALOHA ESCAPES

The wonder is, however, that Aloha, Wanderwell, the 17 year old sister of the intrepid Captain, and the pilot of Car 3, has lasted this long, for Aloha, who joined forces and Fords with her brother in France after he sailed on the United States Shipping Board tramp freighter "Mosella" is as easy to look at as a bit of scenery in the famous Yosemite valley. Tall, browned delicately, and with a complexion that must have been the original of the skin you love to touch, she naturally makes the natives pause for breath. But that isn't all. She has a head of red-gold curls which are not bobbed, grey eyes with lashes that are so long her eyes must get tired supporting them, and a smile!

After Captain Wanderwell in Ford number two was joined by Aloha, in Fold number three, they toured France, Switzerland, San Marino, the smallest republic in the world, in the Pyreness, Italy, Monaco, Spain, Morocco, Portugal, Germany, Poland, and Russia, to Odessa. The Fords, each bearing an international license, marked "W. A. W. E. C." (Wanderwell Around The World Endurance Contest), and with official letters from the League, were the first cars to cross Germany, from end to end, since the War. After leaving Odessa the Wanderwells rambled along the Black Sea and around the Carpathians which they were unable to cross, because of the intense cold and storms of

It is remarked that M. Herriot has logically applied his ideas and marked the turning point of French policy. It remains to be seen whether the others will advance in the same direction.

London, August 17.—Correspondence between the French, Belgian and German Delegations dated yesterday shows that MM. Herriot, Theunis and Hymans promised evacuation of the Ruhr within a maximum of 12 months "if the London agreements are carried out in a spirit of good faith and pacification." They also agree the day after the final signature of the agreements to evacuate the Dortmund-Hoerde Zone and the territories outside of the Ruhr occupied since January 11, 1923, in order to give "immediate and spontaneous proof of their desire for peace and confidence in the undertakings freely entered.

Herr Marx, in his reply, while maintaining that the occupation of the Ruhr is unlawful, hopes that the latter decision will mark the beginning of a new era of mutual relations.

Peking Gives Plan For Mixed Court Rendition

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 18.—The Chinese Government sent a Note to the Diplomatic Body on August 9, in which, after commenting on the Diplomatic Body's Note of June 5, on the subject of the rendition of the Mixed Court, the Government submitted a draft formula of six articles, the most important points of which were as follow:

(1) The Court shall be called the Special Court of Shanghai, the judges to be appointed by mandate. Chinese law shall be applied to civil and criminal cases in which only Chinese or subjects of non-extraterritorial powers are concerned but in mixed cases in which citizens of extraterritorial Powers are concerned foreign assessors may be appointed. Where Chinese violate the Municipal regulations an assessor may sit with the Judge.

(2) Sentences of 10 years and upwards must be approved by the Minister of Justice. Death sentences may be passed and if approved shall be carried out by the Special Court. Where preliminary investigations in mixed cases are necessary attorneys approved by the Court and foreign assessors may appear.

(3) Jails and lock-ups of the Special Court shall be under Municipal police administration.

(4) Appeals in mixed cases may be lodged either with the Consul concerned or the Foreign Commissioner at Shanghai and a new judge and a new assessor must be appointed to hear the retrials.

Point (5) deals with the Court's financial affairs and provides for a chief clerk of foreign nationality being in charge of revenues and expenditure. The Senior Consul shall recommend the chief clerk, whom the Government shall appoint.

Point (6) emphasises that the above are temporary and that when extraterritoriality is abolished they will lapse.

Several of the articles emphasise that subjects of non-extraterritorial Powers will be dealt with in the same manner as Chinese.

LONG-DRAWN-OUT H. AND S. BANK CASE CONCLUDED

Order Handed Down In British Court For Payment To S. Okada

A complicated case which started 13 years ago over the deposit of Tls. 3,650 in the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation was finally settled yesterday in the British Supreme Court before Judge Sir Skinner Turner. An order was issued by the British Supreme Court here on October 12, 1911 restraining the Bank from parting with the sum mentioned, which was due under a Yue Dah Bank native bank order on that date, until further order. Mr. S. Okada, through his counsel Messrs. Teesdale, Newman, and McDonald, on July 13, 1924, after a number of years in which the case has lain dormant or cropped up in one Court or another in the Orient, moved the Court to discharge this restraining order and to order payment of the amount involved to him. The Court decided yesterday to make an order to this effect.

The native bank order in question was received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank from Mr. Okada on September 25, 1911, and was due on October 12 following, to be remitted to a party in Chemulpo. Before the money left here, however, the official receiver at Wei-hai-wei received an order restraining the Bank from parting with the money. An application from the British Consul-General in Korea had called for the payment of the money to one Soh, who had been declared a bankrupt.

A certain General Min appears to have been at least the chief creditor of this Soh, and had obtained a big judgment against him in Wei-hai-wei in 1910. Min is still in the case, appearing as a plaintiff in yesterday's proceedings. Mr. Okada, however, appears to have been in full control of the bankrupt Soh's funds, and the Tls. 3,650 was apparently of these funds. An affidavit was finally filed by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation in May 1912—detailing the circumstances under which they got the money, and stating that they had no interest in the matter whatever and were willing to do anything necessary with the money. Down to yesterday's proceedings the money lay at the disposal of the Court here pending decision.

Gen. Min, Soh, the bankrupt, and Mr. Okada were the parties mainly concerned. In the many years since proceedings started—most of the main persons originally interested have died, and their sons are carrying on the case. The matter has been in many courts, and Soh the bankrupt, whom the Japanese Consular Court here, decided against, once appealed on the grounds that he was not domiciled here and therefore this Court had no jurisdiction over him. Nothing more was heard of this however.

When the case, after a lapse of many years, came into the British Supreme Court here again, it was on an application of Soh Bung-eul who is the deceased bankrupt's son. He, of course, has no claim on any of his father's funds, as these belong to his father's creditor and not to him, but the younger Soh was given a power of attorney by Mr. Okada to negotiate for and receive the money, the claim being Mr. Okada's own. There was also a certificate produced from Mr. Kanazawa, the Judicial Consul of Japan in Shanghai, stating that the Tls. 3,650 in question had always been and was the property of the said Mr. Okada, and that a previous certificate issued by the Consulate thirteen years ago was erroneous, the mistake having been made clear by the parties concerned.

The Court, summing up, expressed the opinion that the claim of Mr. Okada was complete, even without reference to the certificate from the Japanese Consulate. There was plenty of evidence to show that the money really was under the full and complete control of Mr. Okada, and the Court made an order to have the money paid out to him.

a very unsatisfactory lighting of the streets and residences. Another result of this stealing of the current has been that some people, attempting to follow his example, and not knowing how to handle the wires, have lost their lives. It is a strong arraignment of official corruption which the Electric Light Co. has made public. This is by no means an isolated case in this district, but it is the first instance within recent years, where an attempt has been made to bring corrupt officialdom to justice. The reason for this is that the accused has been shorn of his power and therefore the venture is made, while his predecessors have retained more or less of their power and have retired scot-free to convenient places where they could enjoy, unmolested, their ill-gotten gains.

ment, and Dr. Gauntlett, whose evidence showed the deceased died from kidney trouble.

Mr. Maitland, for the prosecution, stated yesterday in opening the case that when he learned last Friday the result of the autopsy he considered it best to have the medical evidence brought before the Court as soon as possible. He believed the charge against the defendant would have to be withdrawn.

Dr. E. G. Gauntlett, on the stand, testified that he had formed the opinion through the autopsy that the cause of death was kidney trouble, possibly aided by opium poisoning. He described the condition of the kidneys, urine, etc. While he had found a bruise on the back of the skull, it was not from a blow that could cause the man's death.

Dr. McKinstry testified to the same effect, and stated that in the stomach washings submitted to the Health Department five milligrams of morphia were found.

Employees of the Louza Station were also put on the stand, and testified unanimously to the inspector having merely slapped the deceased. They also testified to the Inspector having made Yih get up upon his returning and finding the man in bed, also to his pushing him down the steps, but not violently.

Mr. Maitland said that in view of all the evidence produced, he asked for permission to withdraw the charge. Magistrate King concurred, stating that on the medical evidence before him the charge of manslaughter must obviously be dismissed. He considered the Prosecutor had acted rightly in asking the Court to sit long before the week's remand had expired, in view of the serious nature of the charge against the police officer. He then dismissed the case.

New Dance Records Received By Pathe

A number of the latest New York successes in jazz music have just been received by Pathe-Orient.

The "Actuelle" records which this firm import is the name of the new process record which plays on all phonographs with steel needles. These are received here every fortnight, and are on sale in Shanghai at the same date that these numbers are released in America. The latest of jazz music is thus secured. In very many cases the dance numbers arrive here before they become known by the dancing public, and are often kept in stock for several weeks before they are heard in the cafes and become popular.

The August records contain some very good numbers, among them "Oh! Baby—don't say 'No,' say 'May-be'," which has become very popular, also Savannah, a southern jazz melody, played by Fry's famous "Million Dollar Pier" orchestra, and "Lonesome Little China doll." "Back in Hackensack, New Jersey" is also a good number, played by the Casino Dance Orchestra, with a vocal chorus by the well-known vaudeville star, Ernest Hare.

WATCH THE FRUIT YOUR CHILDREN EAT

Whilst most ripe, sound fruits are good for children there is danger in fruit which is green, over-ripe or damaged, among the least of the evils to be feared from such fruit being acute indigestion, diarrhoea and worms.

When you have reason to suspect that your child has eaten fruit of a doubtful character the best course is to administer a dose of Baby's Own Tablets at once, for these Tablets quickly but gently cleanse the stomach and bowels, and can be given with absolute safety even to the youngest or most delicate infant.

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are also a specific for teething troubles, constipation, colds, and croup. They bring calm, natural, health-giving sleep and promote regular development. From chemists, or direct and post free at 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

IN a letter to a policyholder, Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, describes life insurance legal reserves as follows:—

"RESERVES are the fund accumulated by direction of law to redeem the bonds of the company as they mature. Your policy is a bond which will mature like a municipal bond or a government bond at a fixed date, or at that uncertain date when death draws your name from the urn. When your name comes up, the money must be ready."

part of the cargo now coming from Shanghai to Canton by British ships consists of supplies for flood relief, and in consideration of this and by request of the General Chamber of Commerce of Canton, the committee in charge of the Shameen strike will permit the stevedores to unload these ships on their arrival at Canton.

(Independent News Service)

Kiukiang, August 7.—The past week has witnessed a remarkable change in the flood situation here. The river has been steadily subsiding and the flood in many places is disappearing. The local authorities and the Chinese merchants are very enthusiastic in their relief work. Yesterday, a meeting of the Kiangsi Flood Relief Committee, which was attended by Magistrate Hsuing, Commissioner Sun, the chairman of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and various other leading officials and business men of the city, was held to discuss measures to rescue the flood victims. On account of other appointments, both the chairman and the vice-chairman of the committee were not present. The conference was presided over by the Chief Counsellor of His Excellency Tsai Cheng-hsun and after a consideration of the flood conditions in the various districts, it was announced that the Tuchun Yamen had promised to give out two hundred piculs of rice for purposes of relief.

A week has elapsed since Tuchun Tsai Cheng-hsun and his family went up to Kuling for a summer holiday. The Tuchun has taken with him many of his soldiers who are annoying the whole of the Kuling population in no small degree. It has been reported that while the Tuli was going up the hills, martial law was proclaimed wherever he passed. All coolies, chair carriers, car drivers and even the poor honest farmers were forced to render him free serivce in moving his belongings to the summer resort. His soldiers were at liberty to seize whatever they liked from the poor villagers. The Tuchun is at present lodging in a building belong to General Feng Yu-hsiang.

the conditions at home when they return.

Mr. Sawyer stated that being an American college graduate, he saw with pride the large body of young men who were going to enter American universities. While it was somewhat disappointing this year that the private-supporting students had to face a lot of obstacles through the operation of the new immigration law, he asserted that his government and the consulate in Shanghai were doing all they can to remove the obstacles. He believed that there was still hope that all the students now held up in Shanghai might be able to enter college in time for the fall term.

Mr. Sawyer then expressed his appreciation for the cheerful way in which these latter students came to his office for information. In spite of the circumstances, he found them always patient and courteous, which spirit made his task very pleasant. He concluded by wishing the deputation a pleasant trip across and a profitable sojourn in the United States.

After the program of speeches, the meeting adjourned indoors where refreshments were served. A demonstration of slight-of-hand concluded the program.

Tomorrow night at nine o'clock, the American University Club and the American Returned Students' Club will join as hosts at a reception and dance in their honor at the Union Club, 28 Avenue Edward VII. All members of the clubs and their families are invited.

Shanghai Evens Up On Series With Keio Nine; Play Off Tie Tomorrow

John Scott Hurls Team-Mates To Victory Again In 4 To 1 Game On Sunday; Bristow, Starke And Nagai Are Stars; Seventh Game Tomorrow

By playing a wonderful game of baseball the Gallopers vanquished the Keio nine by a 4-1 tally Sunday completing their third victory and making the series end in a tie. However, the Japanese who won the first three games were presented with the cup offered by the Japanese community and the second trophy which was presented by the Shanghai Baseball Club was won by the local team themselves when they took the last two games in which Scott was the pitcher on both occasions. Although both teams were presented with a trophy they both felt unsatisfied as to the outcome of the series for neither team can be called the champions. In order to settle the argument an odd game has been set for Wednesday afternoon.

In spite of the hard battle which John Scott hurled on Saturday he returned to the mound Sunday and worked just as hard, if not better. The whole team played good ball in this combat although they had pitchers and catchers scattered all over the diamond. Claire who either pitches for the Gallopers or takes a garden position held down first base in big league style. His catch of Hamasaki's high foul fly in the seventh inning was certainly sensational for after running some distance with the ball he pulled it in to him as it came down over his head. This boy Dan Starke has certainly gone on a slugging fest for after his two triples on Saturday he got one more in the first inning of Sunday's game which accounted for two runs.

Buck Taylor, who had reached first base by being hit by the pitcher, was scored on Starke's long base clout to center field and then the latter crossed the plate himself a second later when the pitcher let go a wild pitch.

STARKE IS STAR

Although Starke's batting was a help to the team, his stellar fielding was the best that has been displayed on this diamond. His stops of home runs and three baggers were certainly what gated the local gang a trouncing at the hands of the visitors. That dangerous twirler, Mr. Nagai, who is also a pitcher, was robbed by Dan on two occasions but a third time Nagai put one far on the other side of the galloping outfielder and registered a triple. Nagai then scored when Hamasaki singled, this being their single tally of the game.

The local outfield most surely played just as good a brand of baseball as any team in the big league could have done, for Bristow's catch of Nagai's fly in the eighth inning was certainly a circus feat. Nagai was again robbed of a home run for this would have been a home run as it would have gone over the crowd in right field had that demon Bristow, who by trade is really a catcher, not been under the ball when it came down. To grab this fly and save Scotty a circuit clout he ran from his position on past the flag on the right field corner and leaped up into the crowd to stop the ball. While making his sensational play the Galloper took precautions not to step on any of the spectators who were gazing at him in awe, but at the same time he grabbed ball as it descended at a terrific rate of speed.

This game was certainly a thriller for the fans. Every inning was noted for some star play or long hit. Buck Taylor has the reputation of stealing the only base for the Gallopers of the Keio catcher who has a bullet like peg down to second; Taylor also got a three-bagger Sunday.

PRESENT TROPHIES

After the game Judge C. S. Franklin presented the trophies to the teams and expressed his opinion of the series from a baseball fan's point of view.

The Japanese gave the Shanghai team a big dinner at the Carlton Sunday night when everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Speeches were made by Messrs McIntyre, Gallop, Ikeda, Sahara, Thatch, Kirihara, Maloney and Judge Franklin. Mr. Ikeda's speech follows:

"Victory and defeat depend upon chance as the old saying goes. Especially this is true of the case where the two contending parties are evenly matched. So far as sports are concerned, it is not victory that counts but the decency and sportmanship which are really worthy of admiration and applause.

"There is no need to say who played the best and who the worst, but it may safely be said every player did his very best. They all played brilliantly to the entire satisfaction of all the fans both in the stands and out on the field. Indeed, nothing is more delightful for the spectators than to see the players of both teams do their duties on the diamond fairly and bravely.

"We cannot too much emphasise the fact that sports, be it baseball or anything else, should by no means be interfered with by any political sense or racial prejudice on the part of both players and fans. I am glad to state, in this sense, that nothing of that sort was witnessed throughout the series of six games but that each game was full of friendly feeling and sportmanship not without a mixture of plenty of fine plays on both sides.

It is most gratifying to find that throughout the six games, the two contending teams observed the unwritten law of sportmanship, mutually making concessions whenever and wherever possible, notwithstanding the fact that when matches are played between teams of different nationalities, some trouble is apt to arise. For this reason, we can safely claim that the baseball games played here between the Shanghai American team and the teams from Japan proper, Manchuria, and Formosa for the past two years have been a great success, for we have experienced no trouble whatever.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that baseball has already established itself as one of the most popular pastimes in this city not to speak of the United States of America, the home of the sport, as well as the Japanese Empire. This may be easily testified by the fact that at each game of baseball on the Race Course diamond, thousands of spectators turn out and enjoy the sport, no matter which side has the best of it."

London, Aug. 16.—The Fifth Test Match between England and South Africa opened today at the Oval. The weather was fine but cloudy. There were 5,000 spectators.

Taylor won the toss and decided to go in. Hearne and Commaille opened the innings on a good wicket. Hearne was run out for 4. Commaille was bowled by Tate for 3. Susskind had made 35 when Nurse was caught off Woolley for 37. With 7 extras, the score at the lunch interval stood at 86 for 3.

The South Africans batted for 340 minutes and made a magnificent recovery. After being 2 wickets down for 7, they had made 86 for 3 at the lunch interval, and the score read 205 for 5 at the tea interval. This was largely due to Susskind's stolid and yet very correct display. He batted for nearly four hours, and made 65, ipcluding 6 fours. Catterall forllowed on with a brilliant all-round innings, lasting two hours. His score of 95 included 11 fours.

The English bowling maintained a good length and the fielding was very keen.

South Africa were all out for 342.

Klukiang, August 7.—The past week has witnessed a remarkable change in the flood situation here. The river has been steadily subsiding and the flood in many places is disappearing. The local authorities and the Chinese merchants are very enthusiastic in their relief works. Yesterday, a meeting of the Klangsi Flood Relief Committee, which was attended by Magistrate Hsuing, Commissioner Sun, the chairman of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and various other leading officials and business men of the city, was held to discuss measures to rescue the flood victims. On account of other appointments, both the chairman and the vice-chairman of the committee were not present. The conference was presided over by the Chief Counsellor of His Excellency Tsai Cheng-hsun and after a consideration of the flood conditions in the various districts, it was announced that the Tuchun Yamen had promised to give out two hundred piculs of rice for purposes of relief.

A week has elapsed since Tuchun Tsai Cheng-hsun and his family went up to Kuling for a summer holiday. The Tuchun has taken with him many of his soldiers who are annoying the whole of the Kuling population in no small degree. It has been reported that while the Tuli was going up the hills, martial law was proclaimed wherever he passed. All coolies, chair carriers, car drivers and even the poor honest farmers were forced to render him free serivce in moving his belongings to the summer resort. His soldiers were at liberty to seize whatever they liked from the poor villagers. The Tuchun is at present lodging in a building belong to General Feng Yu-hsiang.

the conditions at home when they return.

Mr. Sawyer stated that being an American college graduate, he saw with pride the large body of young men who were going to enter American universities. While it was somewhat disappointing this year that the private-supporting students had to face a lot of obstacles through the operation of the new immigration law, he asserted that his government and the consulate in Shanghai were doing all they can to remove the obstacles. He believed that there was still hope that all the students now held up in Shanghai might be able to enter college in time for the fall term.

Mr. Sawyer then expressed his appreciation for the cheerful way in which these latter students came to his office for information. In spite of the circumstances, he found them always patient and courteous, which spirit made his task very pleasant. He concluded by wishing the deputation a pleasant trip across and a profitable sojourn in the United States.

After the program of speeches, the meeting adjourned indoors where refreshments were served. A demonstration of slight-of-hand concluded the program.

Tomorrow night at nine o'clock, the American University Club and the American Returned Students' Club will join as hosts at a reception and dance in their honor at the Union Club, 28 Avenue Edward VII. All members of the clubs and their families are invited.

Shanghai Evens Up On Series With Keio Nine; Play Off Tie Tomorrow

John Scott Hurls Team-Mates To Victory Again In 4 To 1 Game On Sunday; Bristow, Starke And Nagai Are Stars; Seventh Game Tomorrow

By playing a wonderful game of baseball the Gallopers vanquished the Keio nine by a 4-1 tally Sunday completing their third victory and making the series end in a tie. However, the Japanese who won the first three games were presented with the cup offered by the Japanese community and the second trophy which was presented by the Shanghai Baseball Club was won by the local team themselves when they took the last two games in which Scott was the pitcher on both occasions. Although both teams were presented with a trophy they both felt unsatisfied as to the outcome of the series for neither team can be called the champions. In order to settle the argument an odd game has been set for Wednesday afternoon.

In spite of the hard battle which John Scott hurled on Saturday he returned to the mound Sunday and worked just as hard, if not better. The whole team played good ball in this combat although they had pitchers and catchers scattered all over the diamond. Claire who either pitches for the Gallopers or takes a garden position held down first base in big league style. His catch of Hamasaki's high foul fly in the seventh inning was certainly sensational for after running some distance with the ball he pulled it in to him as it came down over his head. This boy Dan Starke has certainly gone on a slugging fest for after his two triples on Saturday he got one more in the first inning of Sunday's game which accounted for two runs.

Buck Taylor, who had reached first base by being hit by the pitcher, was scored on Starke's clean base hit to center field and then the latter crossed the plate himself a second later when the pitcher let go a wild pitch.

STARKE IS STAR

Although Starke's batting was a help to the team, his stellar fielding was the best that has been displayed on the diamond. His stops of home runs and three baggers were certainly what saved the locals many a trouncing at the hands of the visitors. That dangerous hitter Mr. Nagai, who is also a pitcher, was robbed by Dan on two occasions but a third time Nagai put the ball far on the other side of the Galloping outfielder and registered a triple. Nagai then scored when Hamasaki singled, this being their single tally of the game.

The local outfield most surely played just as good a brand of baseball as any team in the big league could have done, for Bristow's catch of Nagai's fly in the eighth inning was certainly a circus feat. Nagai was again robbed of a home run for this would have been a home run as it would have gone over the crowd in right field had that demon Bristow, who by trade is really a catcher, not been under the ball when it came down. To grab this fly and save Scotty a circuit clout he ran from his position on past the flag on the right field corner and leaped up into the crowd to stop the ball. While making his sensational play the Galloper took precautions not to step on any of the spectators who were gazing at him in awe, but at the same time he grabbed ball as it descended at a terrific rate of speed.

This game was certainly a thriller for the fans. Every inning was noted for some star play or long hit. Buck Taylor has the reputation of stealing the only base for the Gallopers of the Keio catcher who has a bullet like peg down to second; Taylor also got a three-bagger Sunday.

PRESENT TROPHIES

After the game Judge C. S. Franklin presented the trophies to the teams and expressed his opinion of the series from a baseball fan's point of view.

The Japanese gave the Shanghai team a big dinner at the Carlton Sunday night when everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Speeches were made by Messrs McIntyre, Gallop, Ikeda, Sahara, Thatch, Kirihara, Maloney and Judge Franklin. Mr. Ikeda's speech follows:

"Victory and defeat depend upon chance as the old saying goes. Especially this is true of the case where the two contending parties are evenly matched. So far as sports are concerned, it is not victory that counts but the decency and sportmanship which are really worthy of admiration and applause.

"There is no need to say who played the best and who the worst, but it may safely be said every player did his very best. They all played brilliantly to the entire satisfaction of all the fans both in the stands and out on the field. Indeed, nothing is more delightful for the spectators than to see the players of both teams do their duties on the diamond fairly and bravely.

"We cannot too much emphasise the fact that sports, be it baseball or anything else, should by no means be interfered with by any political sense or racial prejudice on the part of both players and fans. I am glad to state, in this sense, that nothing of that sort was witnessed throughout the series of six games but that each game was full of friendly feeling and sportmanship not without a mixture of plenty of fine plays on both side.

It is most gratifying to find that throughout the six games, the two contending teams observed the unwritten law of sportmanship, mutually making concessions whenever and wherever possible, notwithstanding the fact that when matches are played between teams of different nationalities, some trouble is apt to arise. For this reason, we can safely claim that the baseball games played here between the Shanghai American team and the teams from Japan proper, Manchuria, and Formosa for the past two years have been a great success, for we have experienced no trouble whatever.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that baseball has already established itself as one of the most popular pastimes in this city not to speak of the United States of America, the home of the sport, as well as the Japanese Empire. This may be easily testified by the fact that at each game of baseball on the Race Course diamond, thousands of spectators turn out and enjoy the sport, no matter which side has the best of it."

London, Aug. 16.—The Fifth Test Match between England and South Africa opened today at the Oval. The weather was fine but cloudy. There were 5,000 spectators.

Taylor won the toss and decided to go in. Hearne and Commaille opened the innings on a good wicket. Hearne was run out for 4. Commaille was bowled by Tate for 3. Susskind had made 35 when Nurse was caught off Woolley for 37. With 7 extras, the score at the lunch interval stood at 86 for 3.

The South Africans batted for 340 minutes and made a magnificent recovery. After being 2 wickets down for 7, they had made 86 for 3 at the lunch interval, and the score read 205 for 5 at the tea interval. This was largely due to Susskind's stolid and yet very correct display. He batted for nearly four hours, and made 65, including 6 fours. Catterall forllowed on with a brilliant all-round innings, lasting two hours. His score of 95 included 11 fours.

The English bowling maintained a good length and the fielding was very keen.

South Africa were all out for 342. Score:

Two German Towns To Be Evacuated By French

nents would invite their respective central banks to facilitate the placing of the loan.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in a speech congratulating the delegates, termed the agreement the first treaty, the first real negotiated agreement since the war. Every party represented was morally bound to do its best to carry it out.

The British Prime Minister added that Notes had been exchanged agreeing to evacuation of the Ruhr within a year from today. Certain areas would be evacuated without delay as proof that the French and Belgian Governments meant that the whole matter should be ended with all the expediency circumstances would allow.

Mr. MacDonald said that the delegates must now strive to make their work fruitful for good. He declared that M. Herriot and M. Theunis had been admirable. "If they might have thought at times that I was rather unbending, it was for the sake of Europe and the best interests of all our peoples as I saw them."

The British Prime Minister said that he would like to impress on the German people that, as a result of the Conference, they had created a system of arbitration examination and revision which would enable both them and us to observe the working of the Dawes plan and to watch the projects that might be doubtful in their effects and come together in sincere desire to rectify mistakes so soon as the mistakes were discovered. In other words, the time of national isolation had ended and the time for exchange of views and reasonable dealing with experience had begun. Their work was only beginning, however, and they must continue to work for a peace-making restoration.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald proposed that the question of inter-Allied debts should be dealt with in accordance with the declaration made at Paris. He declared that economic problems were bound to arise when the Central European Powers had found their feet and there would be attempts on the part of soulless international combines by political pressure to subordinate common interest to their own interests. Defense of national interests and national well-being against such moves must receive the most careful consideration and firm action of the Democratic Governments.

M. Herriot termed the result of the Conference the beginning of a new era. He paid a tribute to Mr. MacDonald who had led them with such patience, kindness and loyalty. The French Prime Minister said that all the problems of war had not been solved but they already perceived the dawn. France was happy in seeing written in front of the London document the idea of document, the idea of arbitration which all hoped would be generalised in order to substitute a regime of conventions based on right and legality for the atrocious rule of war.

Mr. Frank B. Kellogg complimented the delegates and highly praised the Dawes plan which from the beginning had the loyal support of the President and people of the United States. The American delegate believed that this settlement was the dawning of a new day of revival of industry and prosperity.

M. Theunis hoped that the success of the Dawes plan would create a new atmosphere.

Signor De Stefani laid stress of the necessity for a real and efficient brotherhood of the peoples for harmonious development of the work of reconstruction.

Herr Marx hoped that the provision with regard to arbitration would always be used and that war had come to an end. He thanked Mr. MacDonald and said that Germany would be willing to collaborate in the common work for humanity.

Baron Hayashi congratulated Mr. MacDonald on the success he had achieved.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, August 17.—The Nationalists have published a declaration rejecting the London compromise.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 17.—The 10,000-word "Agreement of London" after a Conference of 31 days has given widespread satisfaction. The speeches at the final sitting were cordially applauded. Mr. MacDonald led the applause of Herr Marx's speech after which a foreign Office official carried the agreement round for signature or initialling. The President, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Secretary-General, Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Maurice Hankey, and the Delegation Secretaries, excluding the United States Secretary, signed the opening protocol but the four annexes containing the main substance of the agreements were only initialled by the various Delegations, including representatives of the British Dominions, pending formal signature on August 30. It was expressly stated, however, that the agreements cannot be varied except that the dates regarding the stages of execution of the plan will be advanced a little as the original dates were presupposed, the first steps having been taken by August 15.

It is understood that Herr Marx made clear that he will regard the agreement as null and void if the Reichstag fails to ratify it.

There were animated scenes at Downing Street while the last touches were being put. A large ever-changing crowd was parading the Street and there was a great outburst of cheering when Mr. Ramsay MacDonald emerged looking very pleased. He said: "I am very glad that it is over. Everyone is very pleased." M. Herriot was beaming. He declared: "We are very contented and satisfied. I will return to France altogether pleased and happy."

Mr. MacDonald later left in a train for Lossiemouth where he will spend a week's holiday in the Highlands. It is expected that he and his daughter Isabel will be the guests of Their Majesties at Balmoral during the next week-end.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 18.—A remark by Dr. Stresemann at Saturday's meeting of the Conference that he was hourly receiving shoals of protests against signing of the proposed agreement and M. Herriot's reply that he was also buried in a similar avalanche, illustrate the circumspection with which the two principals bargained at the final stages. The German delegates pressed hard for concessions, for example, government guarantee of the loan and early evacuation of Ruhrort. The first point was met by the Allies agreeing to facilitate the success of the loan by every means short of an actual guarantee, while the last obstacle was removed when the French and Belgian delegates, although reluctant to abandon the pivotal town, ultimately conceded the evacuation of Ruhrort and other minor sanctions and towns before September 1. M. Herriot discreetly hinted at a possibility of a favorable review of the whole evacuation issue in the light of German behavior for two months.

There finally arose the question of dyestuffs on which the French, Belgian and German delegates were agreed, whereas Mr. Ramsay MacDonald withheld his assent until he had consulted experts, after which it was agreed that commercial treaties should be negotiated by the Powers simultaneously on a basis of equality.

The tone of the London press is one of restrained satisfaction. While warmly recognising that it is the greatest advance since Versailles, the papers re-echo Mr. MacDonald's words on Saturday that the work of pacification is now only beginning and call attention to the complexities which are bound to arise from enforcement of the Dawes report and also to the more general questions like readjustment of the individual Allies' proportions of reparatons.

The Liberal papers accuse Mr. MacDonald of weakness in consenting to continued occupation of the Ruhr but note with pleasure the evidences of French good faith contained in the official announcement that a number of towns will be evacuated today.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 16.—During the negotiations between the French and Belgians and the Germans today, it was agreed that the town and district of Dortmund should be evacuated on the day after the signature of the protocol at the end of August and also other districts occupied during the occupation of the Ruhr, but that the Ruhr itself should be evacuated in a year.

The final meeting of the Conference will be held in the evening.

The German delegates will probably go to Berlin tomorrow. The Reichstag will meet on August 21.

Later.—The Conference agreement has been initialled.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, August 16.—The French and German delegates had a long conversation on Friday, in the course of which the latter accepted the proposal of the French and Belgian plenipotentiaries for the military evacuation of the Ruhr within a maximum period of one year. The conversations will continue today in order to clear up certain points yet in suspense, and it is expected that this evening will see the end of the labors of the Conference.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 17.—The agreements concluded by the Conference comprise a final protocol with four annexes, which make no reference to the evacuation of the Ruhr. The protocol sets forth, inter alia, that the agreements are mutually inter-dependent.

Annexe I consists of the agreement between the Reparation Commission and the German Government relative to the carrying out of the Dawes plan.

Annexe II specifies, inter alia, the form of arbitration in various eventualities, and also provides for a mixed committee of Allied and German representatives to determine the procedure for deliveries in kind.

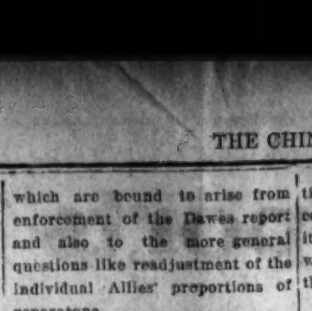
Annexe III provides that the Dawes plan be put into execution by September 30 at the latest, including Germany's promulgation of the necessary laws for the installation of executive bodies, the establishment of a bank and of a German railway company, and the fulfilment of contracts for a loan of 800,000,000 gold marks.

The restoration of the fiscal and economic unity of Germany is to be completed by October 5, including the restoration of the power which the German Administration enjoyed in the occupied territories prior to January 11, 1923, and the restoration of industrial and other undertakings in the Ruhr to their owners etc. The German railway system is to be taken over by the railway company formed under the Dawes plan by September 20, and the lines worked by the Franco-Belgian Regie are to be completely transferred to that Company by November 20.

The Agreement further deals with an amnesty for political acts since January 11, 1923, and authorises the reference of disputes to the Hague International Court.

Annexe IV embodies the arrangement relative to an American sitting on the Reparations Commission when anything arising from the Dawes plan is considered, and to arbitration regarding German default.

Sanctions will not be applied unless flagrant default is established. The Allies, in the event of sanctions, will safeguard the specific securities pledged for the service of the loan priority. All disputes in connection with sanctions will be submitted to the World Court.



A GREAT DOCTOR'S OPINION OF PEPS

That the eminent British Physician, Dr. Gordon Sadler, M.D., F.R.C.P., was a firm believer in the Peps breatheable treatment is proved by the following extract from his treatise on "Coughs and Colds":—

"All the while that these Peps tablets are dissolving on the tongue," he writes, "the sufferer is inhaling into the deepest recesses of the lungs rich balsamic fumes akin to the air of the famed pine forests of Norway and Switzerland. By the use of Peps the inflamed throat, chest and lungs receive a softening yet invigorating germ-killing bath. This speedily stops any cold or chill, cures the cough, clears the air-tubes, and removes the chest tightness and heavy breathing.

A True Breatheable Medicine

"When visiting theatres or other crowded places of assembly, people often catch dangerous colds and chills through stepping out of overheated rooms into the chilly night air. Safeguard against all such risks by taking these breatheable Peps, which also provide a pleasant and powerful means of protection against infection from fellow-travellers suffering from influenza, tonsillitis etc. "A Peps in your mouth keeps infection out." The diagram is to demonstrate the Peps direct method of dealing with trouble in the chest and bronchials.

winter. Roumania, Bulgaria, Greece, Turkey, Syria, Palestine, Egypt, the Sudan, East Africa, Eritrea, Somaliland, were a few of the places they elected to visit. Then they crossed the Red Sea, entered the Arabian kingdom of Hedjaz, and got as far as Mecca. The holy city of the Mohammedans was barred to these foreigners of an alien religion, so they climbed back into their Fords, were pulled by camels across the desert and reached Hodeida.

ACROSS ARABIA

Aden, that outpost of British civilization where a merciless white sun sucks the vitality out of the unfortunate colonizers there, was not omitted from the itinerary of intrepid adventurers. Leaving Aden they went across Arabia then crossed the Persian gulf into Baluchistan, braved the Great desert and made Bombay, in India. The monsoon season with its accompanying devilt'ries of climate and weather was on.

In Burma flooded rivers were forded by the Fords. After another series of adventures and misadventures Captain and Aloha came to the Straits settlements and at Singapore, came as close to touching the equator as they had at any point on their trip. In Siam roads were good in Indo-China they sometimes found no roads at all and had to travel by river boats as they did in Burma. Hongkong was the next important stop and as the floods in the south of China would not permit of any attempts to come to Shanghai by motor the travellers resorted to a steamer and rolled down the gang plank of the "Albert Vogler" yesterday morning.

They plan to stay here a week during which time they will lecture and show the moving pictures they have taken on the trip so far, after which they will go to Peking, then Vladivostok, Japan, Honolulu, Australia and America. They have a lot of wandering and rambling still before them, however, for a condition of the contest is that they must drive through the gates of the next world exhibition and with the Wembley exhibition extended through next year it is doubtful if any plans will be made to hold another in any part of the world for some time.

CALL AT CONSULATE

The picturesque little cars were inspected by a number of curious Shanghailanders as they stood in the Consulate compound yesterday while The Wanderwells paid an official call on Consul-General E. S. Cunningham. They were entertained at tea later by Consul-General and Mrs. Cunningham in the Consulate.

The Fords are low-slung little affairs, painted khaki color, minus doors, running boards and all other ordinary parts. The Captain's car was inhabited by "Wandy" a holy monkey which attached itself to the tour in India. "Wandy" conceived a passion for Mrs. Cunningham's chic white hat yesterday and was making mad grabs at it until an obliging reporter fed him a pencil which he promptly de-pointed by chewing all the lead off the top.

The cars are decorated with all sorts of signs from everywhere. They are veritable autograph albums and bear thousands of signatures in all languages some written on, some scratched on, others painted on and still others cut out of metal and hammered on.

LORD INCHCAPE DISCOURSES ON STANDARD SHIPS

Britain's Place Defined At The World Power Conference

London, July 11.—Viscount Inchcape, in a paper on "Shipowners and Shipbuilders" presented at yesterday's meeting of the World Power Conference at Wembley, stated that the chief function of the shipowner, if he was to get the best value out of his relations with the shipbuilder, was a digestive one. In other words, it was up to him to accumulate data from voyage to voyage, to determine how much is the way of new ideas could be usefully applied; to reject that which was not germane to profitable and efficient running, and to pass on the collective data to his ship-designer and shipbuilder.

The institution of the modern testing tank, continued Lord Inchcape, with its almost daily development of efficiency, had given shipowners a sense of security in accepting builders' hull designs which formerly was denied to them, and it was possible today to forecast the performances of a commercial ship with a degrees of accuracy that was valued by the owners and all concerned.

Referring to the question as to whether types of ships be standardised, Lord Inchcape said there was nothing in his opinion to recommend the mass production of standardised ships. That was a method that might be described as the communism of ship construction; and communism might be likened to a race in which theoretically all competitors came in first with no prizes. A properly constituted mercantile marine, or a properly constituted human society, must be productive of types of individual excellence, whether of ships or men. In laying down the plans of a ship, once the broad principles of buoyancy, stability, etc., had been conceded, the similiarity of ship to ship, or at least of type to type, should end.

NAVAL PROGRESS

Britain was the birthplace of the mechanically-propelled ship; in Britain had been generated all the best practice of the engineer and naval architect. But it must never be forgotten that neighboring races had, time and again, shown their capacity to receive British ideas and to improve upon them.

But the British also had shown themselves capable of assimilating the creation of clever foreign brains, and of going one better. There was no reason why we should not do this in the matter of technical schooling.

Elementary science in our primary schools, and technical study in our secondary and public schools, were receiving today a measure of attention greater than ever before. This process must be continued and expanded if England was to retain her old place in the world.

It was, in his opinion, most important that our great shipyards and steel works should continue to keep an eye on what their neighbors abroad were doing in the way of discovery and invention.

Submitting a paper on "Hull Resistance and Power Propulsion," Mr. G. S. Baker said that a great deal remained to be learned about the problem of ships' propellors. In the best cases the screw wasted over 25 percent of the power absorbed by it and in the more ordinary cases the power lost was nearer 40 percent. In America, Germany, England and other countries this problem was being attacked on model and full-size scale, and it was hoped that the work would result in effective improvements in ships' propellors.

OIL AND COAL

On the subject of fuels and their supply for sea transport, Mr. F. J. Leathers said that it was regrettable to find in certain countries an obstructive attitude and a total lack of imaginative foresight on the part of such bodies as canal authorities, Dock Boards and Customs Boards in regard to the introduction of oil fuels.

Oil, he said, had come to stay, and it was surely time that such public bodies should recognise those anomalies in their regulation which tended to restrict its usefulness. Some port authorities and public bodies had from the first recognised the value of oil, and had done all in their power to put it on an equal footing with coal, but in some countries, such as Australia and India, oil bunkers were still subject to restrictive tariffs which were designed to apply to oil for other purposes.

When he said that these taxes even amounted to about 10s. per ton, whereas coal bunkers were free, it would be understood that the handicap thus put upon the use of oil was a grave obstacle to the best interests of mercantile progress. It was important, therefore, that pressure should be brought to bear on such authorities as were still not alive to the needs of shipping for oil until their regulations and tariffs were brought more into line with modern requirements.

Mr. W. T. Donnelly, dealing with the application of power for marine purposes in America, said they had heard a great deal about the danger of electricity on board ships. Yet the bursting of steam boilers and steam pipes had been responsible for the deaths of hundreds, whereas electric conductors killed only individuals.

In such great ships as the Leviathan there were installed without protest fifty or more boilers each with several furnaces and a large number of steam connection high pressure water pipes, etc. Could there be any more perfect parallel than to replace these boilers by electric generating sets, generating, combining and delivering power to electric motors in the same manner in which the steam boilers generated and delivered power through steam piping? Any comparison of the reciprocating or turbine steam engine with the electric motor must mean a victory for the latter on every type.

BROADCASTING

The subject of broadcasting and its influences was introduced by Mr. J. C. W. Reich, director of the British Broadcasting Company Broadcasting, he said, had made its influence felt to hundreds of thousands of people in the British Isles. It had led to the rediscovery of the home. At the end of March of this year approximately 800,000 licenses had been issued, and by assuming that there was a family or group of persons around each set, the total number of listeners would be in the vicinity of 4,000,000.

The popularity of broadcasting, he continued, had not only given an enormous stimulus to radio research, but had created a new industry. It was doubtful if there were more than two or three dozen firms manufacturing radio apparatus in 1922 before broadcasting activities began. Today there were 1,250 shareholders of the B.B.C. This aspect of the case in view of the existing unemployment trouble was of special significance.

Mr. Reith said the time was not far distant when special programs would be transmitted regularly from America for the benefit of British listeners.

Similar programs would be sent from Great Britain to America, and there was nothing to prevent the development of a world chain of broadcasting stations, even if direct transmission were impossible, so that Australia would be heard from the British Isles.

INDIAN SILK MEN WILL RETURN TO YOKOHAMA SOON

Fifteen Companies Agree To Return But The Majority Demur

Fifteen Indian silk exporting firms that removed to Kobe after the quake, and the Joshu merchants—Japanese wholesale sellers of silk and manufactured silk goods—have yielded to the pressure brought by the Yokohama Rehabilitation Committee and will move their offices back to Yokohama in October, but the majority of Indian silk exporters in Kobe are determined to remain in the Kwansai port regardless of the action of a minority of their associates.

After the September earthquake 44 Indian silk exporters moved their offices to Kobe with the result that eight large Joshu merchants opened offices in Kobe also to supply them with silk and manufactured silk goods.

In November, according to Mr. M. D. Vania, honorary chairman of the Indian Merchants Association of Yokohama now of Kobe, and manager of Gobhai Karanjia Ltd., the Rehabilitation Committee in Yokohama made overtures to the Indian merchants who had removed to Kobe in an effort to induce them to transfer their offices to Yokohama. The request was refused and later in the winter a similar request was turned down.

Another offer from Yokohama in June was voted on by the Indian Merchants Association, resulting in 15 firms favoring removing to Yokohama and 27 voting to remain in Kobe.

MINORITY NOT BOUND

"The minority was not bound by the wishes of the majority and might move to Yokohama if they desired," Mr. Vania said.

Later it was rumored that the 15 Indian firms favoring return to Yokoama would move their offices to the Kwanto port and that the Joshu merchants who had opened offices in Kobe to sell to the Indian merchants, also would move their offices to Yokohama. It also was rumored that Yokohama reelers would boycott the Indian merchants who persisted in remaining in Kobe.

Accordingly an extraordinary meeting of the Indian Merchants Association was called in Kobe last Saturday, resulting in the appointment of a committee composed of the heads of 11 firms to investigate the situation and negotiate with the Yokohama Rehabilitation Committee.

"We have learned that the rumor to the effect that the Joshu merchants were returning to Yokohama is true," Mr. Vania said, "but the Joshu merchants assure us that they will continue to sell us the goods the same as before, even though they have removed their offices to Yokohama.

DOES NOT EXPECT BOYCOTT

"Personally, I do not believe it is necessary to move back to Yokohama as all of our business can be conducted satisfactorily from Kobe," Mr. Vania declared. "I do not believe that it is possible for the Rehabilitation Committee to persuade Yokohama sellers to boycott Kobe exporters for it is a rule of business that sellers will dispose of their product wherever they can obtain the best market.

"I attach no importance whatever to the Joshu merchants' removal to Yokohama and believe that we can continue to conduct our business satisfactorily by mail or telegraph communication with the Joshu merchants in Yokohama or if necessary we can buy direct from Joshu." (Joshu is the district north of Yokohama where most of the silk manufacturers are situated.)

Mr. Vania stated that he understood that the Yokohama Rehabilitation Committee had offered to put up office buildings for the Indian silk exporters, charging them rent in cases where they did not own their own buildings formerly, and to firms that had their own buildings before the quake they are selling the newly constructed offices on installment payments over a five year period.

Mr. Vania said that he had been told that the new office buildings would be completed in October and that about 15 Indian firms would remove to Yokohama as soon as the buildings were ready for occupancy.

"In the meantime, we are alone will tell how much effect alone will tell how much effect the removal of the Joshu merchants will have on the business of the Kobe exporters," he said.

The special committee representing the 27 Indian firms that favor remaining permanently in Kobe is composed of representatives of the following companies: Gobhai Karanjia Ltd., W. Assomull, A. A. Karim Brothers, Vashnia and Co., Jethmal Dhalamal, T. K. Hemumal, C. M. Bhesania and Co., Rijhumal Brothers, Tolaram Devjiram, K. Hotchand and Co. and Sphinx Trading Co.

Peking Discounts Rumors Of Strife On Chekiang Front

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 14.—In spite of reports from various sources indicating increased military activity, there was a tendency in foreign circles today to discount the current rumors that Chekiang is likely to be invaded at any moment by combined forces from Kiangsi, Kiangsu, Anhwei and Fukien. From what is believed to be an Anti-Chihli source it is announced that on August 5 representatives of the four provinces last mentioned conferred with the Minister of War in Peking and discussed the measures which should be taken against Chekiang in view of the re-entry into Chekiang of Generals Tsang Chih-peng and Yang Hua-chen and their incorporation under the banner of General Lu Yung-hsiang. It is said that the plan adopted by the conference was immediately to mobilise two divisions from Kiangsu, three brigades from Fukien and one brigade from Kiangsi.

Other reports from Foochow indicate that General Sun Chuan-fang has ordered General Meng Chao-yueh to reinforce the troops along the Chekiang border and is concentrating his forces north of Fukien. This is not, however, taken to mean that General Sun intends to invade Chekiang or that his concentration of troops has any connection with the reported scheme of Marshal Wu Pei-fu to attack that province simultaneously from the south, east and north.

From Hangchow comes a report that there are obstacles in the way of a fusion of the forces of Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan, who is the Inspecting General over Kiangsi, Anhui and Kiangsu, and those of Marshal Wu and that these are likely to prevent the close cooperation necessary for a successful joint attack.

IN MEMORIAM

In affectionate remembrance of Kenneth W. Cargill who passed away August 19th, 1910.

A Menace To The Nation

WHILST in no sense desiring to be alarmist, it is idle to shut our eyes to the fact that persistent rumors have latterly gained currency that Kiangsu and Chekiang Provinces are on the brink of armed conflict. Talk of war is always pernicious in that it naturally agitates the minds of the people, and if such talk in the end proves to be baseless, much needless anxiety is caused thereby. In the present instance, it would be worth while to search for the genesis of the present war talk in this region of China, which, up to this time, has been happily free from the devastating effects of internecine warfare. The question naturally arises: why should Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan and General Lu Yung-hsiang wish to fight when there is no apparent casus belli between them? The various factors entering into this question, therefore, need examining. We have to look back to first causes if we wish to have an authentic answer to the question why the heads of the two richest provinces in China should wish to bring the sight of blood near our doors assuming that there is some foundation for all this war talk.

.....The causes of the possible conflict promised to this part of China reach far back into the past and are (1) the clashing of personal interests and positions and (2) the question of prefecture of the Shanghai authorities. As everyone knows, Marshal Chi is in control of Kiangsu at Nanking and General Ho Feng-lin is Defence Commissioner of Shanghai and Sungkiang, which are nominally within the scope of Marshal Chi's jurisdiction. In reality, however, the Defence Commissioner takes orders only from Peking in accordance with the system that was inaugurated by the late President Yuan Shih-kai whereby wide powers were conferred on the Shanghai Defence Commissioner who was to take orders direct from Peking. The present Military Governor of Shanghai and Sungkiang is also an appointee of the Peking Government. Now it is well known by every student of politics in this region of China that General Ho Feng-lin, who occupies this post, is a military pupil of General Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang and this makes matters still more complicated. Strictly speaking, the Shanghai Defence Commisioner ought to be under the control of the Nanking Tuchun, but in reality this is far from being the case, and it is precisely at this point that the personal element enters largely into the question of the relations between Marshal Chi and General Lu, who have really nothing against each other.

It is apropos to recall the peace agreement that, under the pressure of public opinion, was concluded last year between Marshal Li and General Lu in which they solemnly undertook to refrain from doing anything calculated to lead to a breach of the peace. Marshal Chi has consistently maintained that he has no desire to attack General Lu and doubtless will take that attitude no matter what happens. He himself will not move a finger against General Lu, but when we remember the geographical situation of the province of which the latter is the head, suspicion, rightly or wrongly, will inevitably fall on Marshal Chi as being the deus ex machina of the whole business in the event of an outbreak of civil warfare. The proposals which are said to have been elaborated by Marshal Chi are said to have obtained the sanction of Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who is reported to have eight divisions ready to deal with Chekiang. General Sun Chuan-fang, of Fukien, will, it is said, start the campaign by attacking Chekiang from the south. With the last-named province hemmed in on all sides—by Hunan, Hupeh and Honan to the east and Shantung and Kiangsu to the north—it will be readily seen that Chekiang will be in a highly precarious position in the event of an attack on the province. It is a logical presumption that Chekiang is not likely to make the first move in any warfare that may ensue, as it is clearly not to the interest of that province to break the peace. It stands to lose much and gain little by bloodshed. If Marshal Chi does not himself attack General Lu, the former cannot escape the suspicion that he has inspired others to do so, and to that extent will be thought to have proved false to the peace agreement to which he has affixed his signature. If you promise not to attack anyone and then get someone else to attack him, in effect it is just as bad as though you yourself have attacked him. The party, then, that fires the first shot will be incurring a terrible responsibility.

Marshal Chi and General Lu will gain nothing by fighting but lose all the advantages that they now have. Reason dictates that they should resolutely stand together to their mutal benefit. Wu Pei-fu today may be promising support to one party against the other, but in the final analysis General Wu is neither a true friend of the one nor of the other. He is essentially out to paddle his own canoe. Directly one side suffers defeat, Wu will probably hasten to crush the other and get him out of the way. Both Marshal Chi and General Lu have achieved celebrity in the eyes of their countrymen in a constructive capacity. Kiangsu and Chekiang are two of the richest and most orderly provinces of China, and if these two leaders cooperate to keep the peace, they will go down in history as patriots in an age which has produced for China nothing but political self-seekers and charlatans who have committed many crimes in the name of patriotism. Marshal Chi and General Lu have all that they can possibly want. They have money, power and position in abundance. They cannot possibly gain anything more by fighting than they have already in their grasp. So, even from the narrow standpoint of self-interest, they stand to gain much by keeping the peace.

Wu Pei-fu, of course, subscribes to the doctrine of unity by force. Chekiang, is a more or less independent province and Wu hopes to bring it within the ambit of his sway by force, if necessary. One cause of resentment on the part of General Wu against General Lu is that the latter has given refuge to the defeated generals Chwong Tse-ping and Yang Hau-chao and their men, but does this fact justify a joint expedition by the surrounding provinces? The men thus harbored amount only to about 5,000. If they had been allowed to run loose after defeat, they would probably have dispersed about that country and become a menace to the populace. Viewed from every possible angle, a breach of that peace can bode no good to the country. It will be a major disaster if the provinces of Kiangsu and Chekiang, which hitherto have alone remained aloof from the chaos which has marked the rest of the country, were to be dragged into the vortex of civil war whereby other parts of the land have been lying torn and bleeding. The diplomatic and commercial interests in the Yangtsze Valley and along the railways are too great to permit of needless fighting, which will settle nothing. Such a wicked conflict will set the whole nation afire and all military factions will be eventually involved. Marshal Chang Tso-lin of Mukden is not likely to sit with arms folded in the event of Fukien attacking his old friend, General Lu of Chekiang. The latter will probably have no choice except to rush to Nanking with a view to its capture in the event of an attack. And here it might be asked, in the event of a reverse for Chekiang, if it is possible to destroy the entire military machinery of that province. If not, what arrangements are going to be made to give the troops an occupation if and when they suffer a reverse?

The present appears to be the selected moment for a strongly worded warning from the Diplomatic Corps to the Peking Government. Another method to avoid the proposed conflict is for the Chambers of Commerce to act as mediators, for they stand to lose the most in the event of warfare. Fresh peace treaties between Chekiang and neighboring provinces at this stage would be no disadvantage for all parties concerned. The people of Kiangsu and Chekiang, whose welfare is bound up in the preservation of peace, should make a herculean effort to try to bring Marshal Chi and General Lu face to face in an effort to settle all the pending questions between the two provinces. War will settle nothing. There is no issue between the two provinces that cannot be settled at the conference table.

Can China Recover Her Lost Tea Markets?

THE organisation of a company composed of returned students to manufacture tea by machinery in Cnina arouses interest in the possibility of China to recover her great tea markets which she possessed with varying fortunes up to about a quarter of a century ago. According to the reports regarding the new company, three small factories have been established in Chekiang Province located at Hangchow, Shaoshing and Yuhang with a central selling and business office in Shanghai. The factories have been in operation for about eighteen months and samples of the new product have been sent to Great Britain and America for the purpose of interesting distributors in the product.

It will be remembered that reference was made in these columns of The China Press recently to reports from Washington indicating the intention of the American Government to place restrictions upon the import of China teas because of the actions of unscrupulous Chinese merchants in adultering shipments to the United States. The Chinese Minister in Washington also cabled the Government in Peking on this subject stating that conservative methods, combined with dishonest practices, had practically lost for China her great tea markets, both in the United States and in Europe.

If this agitation is now to have the effect of stimulating Crina to improve her methods of production, and, of greater importance, to force honest methods of packing, perhaps there is still hope for China to recover a part of her past greatness in this important industry. According to Morse's "International Relations of the Chinese Empire," in 1840 tea comprised 60 per cent. of China's exports to foreign countries and a table published showing statistics from 1830 to 1860 indicated that the tea exports averaged from 50,000,000 to 125,000,000 pounds during this period. These figures are approximate only and possibly include only shipments to Great Britain and the United States. According to the Customs statistics for 1922, China's exports of all classes of teas to all countries was less than 75,000,000 pounds.

It is principally in the United States that China has lost her tea market, according to recent statistics of American imports of tea from China, Japan, British East Indies and Dutch East Indies published by the Tea and Coffee Trades Journal of New York:

The following table shows the amounts in pounds imported from the four principal sources of supply since 1900:—

	China	Japan	British East Indies	Dutch East Indies
1900 ..	42,283,000	33,939,000	4,375,000	—

In a recent book dealing with the trade of the United States with China written by a Chinese, Mr. S. L. Pan, there appears the following interesting paragraph dealing with the early history of China's tea trade with the United States:

"It is quite interesting to study the early American tea trade in connection with the American Revolution and the establishment of the United States. Although tea is an article which may be claimed to be in all its associations eminently peaceful, growing as it does on the hill-sides of one of the most peaceful countries in the world, coming to America through the peace-promoting ways of commerce, until it reaches its ultimate peaceful destination—the family tea table—yet it has been the cause of several wars and political problems. It was destined—as in all social and political affairs, the greatest and the most important events are curiously linked up with the smallest and most insignificant—to be the final crisis leading to the American Revolutionary War. It was the three-penny tax on Chinese tea to which the greatest and most glorious nation of the present day owes its birth. It was Chinese tea that was chosen above all others to emphasize the principles that 'all men are born free and equal' and that 'taxation without representation is tyranny.' Who, in looking back over a long range of events in American history, can fail to have his attention attracted to what has been termed, with a characteristic touch of American humor, 'The Boston Tea Party of 1773.' A dreary November evening, a pier crowded with excited citizens, a few ships in the harbor bearing a hated cargo —hated not for itself, nor for the country from which it originally came, but for the principles involved, on the docks a mere handful of young men, urged on by the fiery prescience of genius, constituting themselves an advance guard to lead the people in revolution."

However, that is aside from the causes of the decline of China's tea trade with the United States, Mr. Pan, the author quoted above, gives two main causes for this decline. The first is the inefficiency in the methods of the Chinese tea manufacturers and the non-improvement of the quality of the tea, and the second, or external cause, is the strong competition of nearly every other country in the Far East with China. First, Japan, then India and Ceylon and Java and finally China's own former territory of Formosa have all outstripped China in tea sales in the United States. Then comes a final and significant reason for the decline of China's tea sales in the United State—LACK OF ADVERTISING. Mr. Pan refers to this subject in the following words:

"It is generally conceded that the failure on the part of China to maintain her tea market in America as well as in other countries is, to a very great extent, due to the complete lack of advertising. Advertising is the lifeblood of commerce at the present day, and is freely resorted to in all business wherever there is an element of competition. The so-called great favor with which India and Ceylon teas are said to be regarded by some European and American consumers is due largely to the energy and persistence with which the trade has been pushed by means of advertising."

Hongkong's Water Supply

THE recent outbreak of typhoid fever in Hongkong has given the residents of that Colony much food for thought, and, apparently, some of the officials an opportunity of exercising their ingenuity in discovering sources from which the infection might have originated. While there is undoubtedly good reason to believe that the Pokfulam reservoir in all probability was to a certain extent responsible, it is not too easy to assume that this alone was the origin of the trouble, while the endeavour which was made at a recent meeting of the Sanitary Board to trace infection through the use of water from this reservoir by the Dairy Farm in the ordinary conduct of their business has not proved altogether convincing. Pokfulam reservoir, as indeed all the main water supplies of Hongkong, obtains its water by the drainage of a fairly large catchment area, the principal supply, thus, being rainwater. While everything possible is done to ensure the purity of the water prior to its entry into storage for ultimate consumption, it is conceivable that this is not always completely successful, for the maintenance of large areas free from pollution necessitates not only the unceasing surveillance of the authorities responsible, but the active co-operation of the inhabitants of the district themselves. This is not always readily afforded, especially when, as must necessarily be the case in such places as Hongkong, the larger masses of the population are entirely ignorant of the finer points of hygeine.

Recent questions asked in the Legislative Council at Hongkong and the replies given thereto, point to the fact that the same standards of purity prevailing in England, have been adopted in the Colony. No check appears to be kept on the quality of the water entering the reservoirs by nullahs leading from the catchment areas, though possibly the suggestion made in the question may eventually be adopted as tending to indicate and afford opportunities for localising centers which may effect the whole of the water so obtained. While it is generally accepted as true that, given sufficient storage time, water will free itself of a substantial proportion of its impurities, Hongkong is so situated that the fullest opportunity cannot be taken of this fact, and it is officially stated that during the summer months when the demand for water reaches extreme limits, filter beds have to be worked at undesirably high speeds, so that if the time for storage be sufficient, the further processes for making the water safe certainly are not. This defect is now remedied by the use of chlorine, and it is stated that since the reservoir has been so treated the quality of the water has gone above standard requirements.

We think, however, that the Colonial Secretary, has erred in stating that the boiling of water while desirable need not be considered essential, as tending to put the public off its guard. Water undoubtedly should be boiled in the Far East, despite what some who have escaped trouble for years may have to say. But generally the practice of boiling is carried out without proper supervision, and more often than not the servant, who is entrusted with this important task, rinses the bottle to contain it, under the tap. This is a practice calculated to undo all the good it is desired to achieve by boiling, and can only be prevented by personal supervision. Though we may be said, in Shanghai to have passed by now the worst of the summer the necessity for boiling water at all times cannot be too strongly insisted upon. Truly those who do not boil it often do not meet with sickness, but a little precaution is worth a mountain of regret.

RUSSIAN CHILDREN ON THE STREET

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir—Those of your readers who are interested in the matter may remember that towards the end of last month a letter signed by "Rex" appeared in the columns of one of your contemporaries eloquently appealing that means be found for the removal of refugee child hawkers from the Shanghai streets and asking, "What is to prevent some of our charitable societies from getting into touch with leading Russians and organising some means of taking charge of these little martyrs?"

As a result of "Rex's" letter investigations were made by representatives of the Press and others whereby it was ascertained that a Russian boarding school for children of both sexes is already being carried on by the Russian Orthodox Confraternity, of which Dr. B. I. Kasakoff is President, at 721 Avenue Foch, and that, provided sufficient funds could be found, accommodation would be available in this school for refugee child hawkers.

The fact was also established that these children are plying their trade without legal authority as they have no hawker's licences.

At a meeting of the Refugee Relief Advisory Committee held on the 7th inst. this matter was discussed in detail, and it was decided that if sufficient financial support could be obtained to enable the Russian Confraternity School to carry on, and at the same time to receive six child hawkers as boarders, the Committee would try to persuade the children's parents to allow them to attend the school instead of hawking.

The position the matter stands in today is as follows:

The Russian Boarding School on Avenue Foch has twenty-four boy and girl pupils and can accommodate six more. But its funds are on the point of exhaustion, and unless help is forthcoming within the next few weeks it not only will be unable to accept any child hawkers as pupils, but will be obliged to dismiss its present inmates and close its doors.

The cost of housing, feeding and teaching 30 children is estimated by Dr. Kasakoff at a minimum of Mex. $290 per month. To meet this the funds available are:

Fees paid for 3 boys, at $10 per month	$30
Proportion of $100 per month received from Mrs. E. Litvinoff towards support of the Russian Orthodox Confraternity's outpatients' Hospital Dispensary and School	25
Guaranteed by "Rex" and friends for the support and schooling of 6 child hawkers, per month	60
A British friend, per month	15
Total	$130

This leaves a balance of $160 monthly yet to be provided, and the question is, how and where is this money to be obtained?

We leave it in the hands of your charitable readers to decide. Our honorary treasurer, Mr. A. E. Lockyer, has kindly consented to receive contributions and subscriptions for the school. His address is care of Messrs. Alex. Ross and Co., Ltd., 12 Hankow Road.

It is open to any person, or body of persons, of course, to appeal to the Police to stop hawking by children on the streets. But until we are quite assured that when doing so we are in a position to improve the lot of these children the request will not be made by us.

I am, Sir, Yours faithfully,
S. W. WOLFE,
Chairman, Refugee Relief Advisory Committee.

THE INWARD SONG

The poet speaks of those
"Who carry music in their heart
Through dusty lane and wrangling mart,
Plying their daily task with busier feet,
Because their secret souls a holier strain repeat."

It would be interesting to have the statistics of what number, out of all the human stream that pours into the city every morning coming to their work, are singing inwardly.

How many are thinking tunefully? How many are moving rhythmically? And how many are going, as dead drays and carts, rumbling lifelessly to their tasks?

It is good that the greater part of the world is in love. For love is the Song of Songs. To the young lover Nature is transformed. Some Ithuriel has touched the deadly commonplace; all is miraculous. The moon, the dead companion to our earth, the pale and washed-out pilgrim of the sky, has been changed into a silver-fronted fairy whose beams thrill him with a heady enchantment. Every breeze has its secret. The woods, the houses, all men and women are notes of that sweet harmony that fills him.

"Orpheus with his lute made trees,
And the mountain tops that freeze,
Bow their heads when he did sing."

Every man is an Orpheus, so he but carry about in him an inward melody. There is for him "a new heaven and a new earth."

This world is an insolvable puzzle to human reason. It is full of the most absurd antinomies, the most distressing cruelties, the most amazing contradictions. No wonder men's minds take in stubborn stoicism, in agnosticism, in blank unfaith.

There is no intellectual faith, no rational creed, no logical belief. FAITH COMES ONLY THROUGH MUSIC. It is when the heart sings that the mind is cleared. Then the pieces of the infinite chaos of things drop into order, confusion ceases, they march, dance, coming into radiant concord.

Marcus Aurelius, that curious anomaly of the Roman world, perfect dreamer in an age of iron, was rich in inner music. The thought in him beamed like a ray of creative harmony over the disordered crowd of men and events.

"Welcome all that comes," he wrote, "untoward though it may seem, for it leads you to the goal, the health of the world order. Nothing will happen to me that is not in accord with nature."

None but so noble a mind can see a noble universe, a noble humanity, a noble God.

What a drop from such a level to the place of the mad sensualists and pleasure-mongers who only know

"To seize on life's dull joys
from a strange fear,
Lest losing them, all's lost and none remains!"

What a whirl of cabaret music, what motion and forced laughter what wild discord of hot vlands, drugged drinks and myriad-tricked lubricity it takes to galvanize us when our souls are dry and cracked and tuneless!

Have you ever had the feelings of Hazlitt? "Give me," he said, "the clear blue sky over my head and the green turf beneath my feet, a winding road before me, and a three hours' march to dinner—and then to thinking! I laugh, I run, I leap, I sing for joy."

Whoever does something that makes the souls of men and women sing within them does more to make this earth habitable and this life tolerable than all the army of them that widen our comforts and increase our luxuries.

Difficulty Over Student Passports Is Cleared Up

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 15.—Newspaper reports recently have drawn attention to the plight of a number of Chinese who, anxious to go to America as students, have been held up in Shanghai owing to a difficulty which arose in connection with the new immigration restrictions now in force in the United States. The matter had come under the notice of the American Minister (Mr. Schurman) and it was stated at the American Legation today that one of the last official acts of Dr. Schurman before he left here on August 16 was to telegraph to the State Department giving a resume of the situation and urging that every effort be made to facilitate the departure of the students. It seems, however, that the State Department had already begun to interest itself in the question because a delayed telegram, sent from Washington on August 9, which has now reached the Legation, lays down a method of procedure which is expected to adjust the difficulty.

The State Department's telegram directs that Consular Officers may now issue, without reference to the Department, non-quota visit to students who are proceeding to certain institutions that have complied with the requirements of the act and have received the approval of the Department of Labor. A list of these institutions is given, the telegram adding that supplemental lists may be issued later. The State Department emphasises that these student applicants must have completed all the preliminary arrangements for admission to one of these institutions. They should present a letter or some other evidence from the institution in question which shows that they have been accepted by that institution as a student and should also satisfy the Consular Officer that they have sufficient funds to defray their expenses during their stay in the United States, or that satisfactory arrangements have been made, and that they will be in a position to devote their time solely to study.

Visas, the State Department announces, may now be granted by Consular Officers to student-applicants proceeding to approved institutions, whose cases have formerly been submitted to the Department of State, without further action in individual cases.

There is no Satisfactory Substitute for Keds!

Keds are the standard by which all canvas rubber-soled shoes are judged. They make you proud of their appearance as well as enthusiastic about their comfort and wear.

Keds, of course, vary in price according to type. But no matter what kind of Keds you buy, every pair gives you the highest possible value at the price.

They're good-looking shoes, Keds. There's a cut and style to them that give your feet that trim look—yet, they're tough, springy and long wearing.

Your feet couldn't be cooler or more comfortable unless you were sandals!

Remember—while there are other shoes that may at first glance look like Keds, no other shoes can give you Keds value. Keds are made only by the United States Rubber Company. If the name KEDS isn't on the shoes, they aren't real Keds.

The Neglected Button and Buttonhole Appears Again On Women's Clothes

Ever since buttons were invented to hold garments together the men of the race have remained partial to them. The first white men who settled America wore clothes fastened together with buttons and buttonholes, and they have been faithful to the button and buttonhole ever since. Women have wavered. They have used metal hooks with loops of cotton. They have used various sorts of snappers, or press-buttons, and they have fastened their clothes together by means of tied strings. Quite frequently they have worn clothes so constructed that a frock or bodice would stay in place with the simple staying of a single clasp pin.

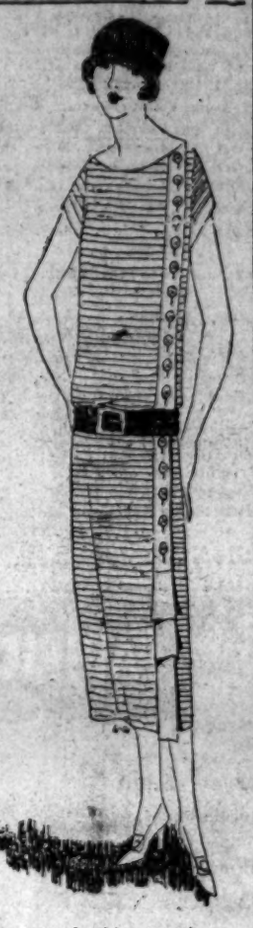
Buttons and buttonholes have been practically eliminated from up-to-date women's underclothes, and the button and buttonhole on negligee or nightgown is as rare as teeth in a hen's mouth.

Just why women have been less fond of buttons than men is an interesting question. It might be that since men do not have to sew on the missing buttons, but from time out of mind have left that work to their womenfolk, they can have no such prejudice against them as have women.

But women still wear buttons. The point is that often these buttons are of merely ornamental value. They fasten not, neither do they unfasten. But often they add a desirable bit of color or finish to a frock or wrap. For several years our coats and wraps have been innocent of buttons and buttonholes. And now, by way of variety, the coat that actually buttons up and down the front is considered very smart. In fact, there are frocks that button with buttons and buttonholes.

The sketch shows one of these frocks—in this case of white crepe de chine with narrow horizontal tucks, fastened at the left side by a row of large crystal buttons.

Though there are still wraps and coats of the sort that wrap around and tie at one hip, there is an increasing number of coats that button down the middle of the front with buttons and buttonholes. There are tailored frocks of the same sort. And quite recently some charming lingerie has come over from France that included dainty nightgowns that actually showed buttons and buttonholes.



White crepe de chine frock tucked and fastened with pearl buttons. There is a red kid belt.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

ODD FASHIONS

To wear one white pearl earring and one black pearl earring at the same time is now regarded quite smart by the women who are never satisfied until they have adopted some new and unusual fad. This ought to be quite a boon to the woman who has lost earrings and has a few "singletons" on hand.

WHAT IS SUCCOTASH?

Msickquatash it was to begin with, and it is one of the few dishes that we have derived from the North American Indians. Perhaps it is the only dish contributed by the Narragansett tribe, and doubtless the only word of their language that has been taken into our own vocabularies.

The dish from the beginning consisted of Indian corn and beans. Among the colonists who adopted this dish it frequently, if not always, contained, a piece of salt pork, and in winter it was sometimes made from dried corn, softened by much cooking.

There no longer seems to be any controversy as to whether real succotash should have salt pork in its midst or not. The whole question revolves around the beans. Should they be lima or string? That is the question.

One recipe calls for a cup of "green or string beans," one cup of corn, one-half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of butter, three-quarters of a tablespoon of floor and a half cup of milk.

To some good American that simply wouldn't be succotash at all.

It is interesting to note, in favor of those who insist on lima beans in their succotash, that the contents of cans marked "succotash" sold in the grocery stores always contain canned corn mingled with a few canned lima beans. As an actual fact, lima beans are often very expensive and sometimes not available when corn is at hand. For this reason string beans or even wax beans may be substituted for the orthodox limas to make a flavorsome dish. If it isn't real succotash it is at least worth preparing and worth eating.

Appointments Made By Peking Cabinet

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 15.—The official report of the Cabinet meeting this morning says that the Cabinet resolved to appoint Mr. Chien Pu-cheng as Tupan of Haichow commercial port constructions, and that a mandate announcing the appointment has been drafted.

It was also resolved that Mr. Li Yi-chun, Taiil (temporary) Chief Justice of the High Court of Hupei, should be given Shuli (Acting) rank. The meeting decided to relieve of his post Mr. Oyang Hsiang, Provincial Commissioner of Industrial Development in Fukien and to appoint Mr. Lin Ping-chang to that post.

According to an unofficial report the Cabinet discussed the question of using the Boxer Indemnities for railway construction, and after an exchange of views in which opinion appeared to be divided it was resolved to ask Marshal Wu for information on certain points.

U. S. Experiments With China Trees

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, July 18.—Experiments with the species of chestnut tree brought from Yunnan, China, by Mr. Joseph F. Rock, discoverer of the Chaulmoogra tree, are being conducted by the Department of Agriculture in the hope of restoring the Chestnut timber resources of the United States.

The Yunnan tree is said to be immune from the blight which is threatening to wipe out the American variety east of the Mississippi River within 25 years. The tanning industry in the United States already is feeling the loss of the thick bark produced by the Chestnut tree, which has an important function in the preparation of leather, and the Chinese variety is described as equally valuable for this purpose.
